 Thumbs down to people who shop in the produce section & need to touch every single fruit/vegetable. See it everywhere all the time; so unsanitary. You've already touched a basket or cart, then you've touched this & that, maybe even scratched your nose, could have just changed your babies butt. We don't know. If you're going to do that at least grab a plastic bag to put your hand in. It really freaks us germaphobes out.

 Thumbs up to Matthew Bennett of Maverick Development Ltd. Excellent carpentry skills! Come check it out at Misty Rivers Gallery & Gift Shop.

 Fun Facts
Vikings used the bones of slain animals when smithing new weapons believing this would enchant the weapon with the animal's spirit. This actually made the weapons stronger because the carbon in the bones coupled with the iron made a primitive version of steel.

2025
This year is the 35th anniversary of the sales peak of the cassette tape. If you walked into a music store in 1990 you'd find your favourite tunes on record, cassette tape and compact disc (If the year was 1980, it would be record, cassette and 8-track tape, the last of which died out two years later). By 1990 the seven-year-old CD had already surpassed both the 26-year-old cassette tape and venerable record in sales. At its 1990 peak, cassettes sold to the tune of $4 billion dollars and records barely sold at all. When the CD was at its peak in 1999, it sold $14 billion. Two items gave the cassette tape its 1980s dominance: the traditional two-speaker, "suitcase handle" boombox introduced in the late 70s, and the Sony Walkman and all its copies introduced to North America in 1980.

The weaknesses of the cassette format were multiple. They degraded over time, the heads need to be cleaned on the players, the tape could easily get damaged and even destroyed by the very machine that played it. It was a good idea to have a Bic pen on hand because if the machine ate your tape and a large amount of the ribbon came out of the cassette, the pen was used to respool the ribbon. The cassette's advantage was that you could make mixes for the first time, tape records and tape other tapes. Boomboxes eventually had two tape decks to accommodate this.

TIP of the WEEK

If you have trouble choosing between two things, flip a coin.
While you're waiting to get the result, your mind automatically starts to wish for what it wants.
Then you can choose easily.

This Week

March 7. On this day in 1876,
Scottish born Canadian-American Alexander Graham Bell received a patent for the first telephone. The first message ever made with a telephone was Bell saying to his assistant, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want to see you." It took a while for the telephone to become widely used; by the end of the 1930s only 40% of U.S. households had them. Bell proposed that "Ahoy" should be the standard phone greeting, but Thomas Edison popularised the use of "Hello", which has stuck up to today. A running joke on The Simpsons is that Mr. Burns is so old he uses, "Ahoy-hoy" whenever he answers the phone.
